70170	COMM	390	072		DIGITAL FILM MAKING NOTE: This course offers a 3-week intensive introduction to digital documentary filmmaking. Students will read documentary film history and theory, and watch multiple examples of documentary film styles, all while working on their own original film project. No prior media production is required. In addition, students will design a simple website or blog to share their work and to raise awareness about the issues that it addresses. Students will also write a short paper that addresses the theoretical components of their film, create a poster for their film, and offer constructive feedback on their classmates' films.
