97278	SOCI	295	001	*	UNDERCOVER OPERATIONS Pre-requisites: SOCI 101 Notes: This course provides an in-depth exploration of undercover operations as utilized by law enforcement entities. Students will explore the planning and execution of undercover investigations, selection of officers for undercover assignment, maintaining cover identities, gathering intelligence, managing safety and ethical considerations, and navigating legal and procedural constraints. Risk management, psychological challenges, and the impact of undercover work on both investigators and their communities will also be discussed. The emphasis of applying theory to practice in this course will help students develop both their academic knowledge as well as enhance their future career skills. Real-world case studies, operations planning and simulations will be used to illustrate best practices and challenges, offering students a practical understanding of undercover work. 97278	SOCI	295	001	*	UNDERCOVER OPERATIONS Pre-requisites: SOCI 101 Notes: This course provides an in-depth exploration of undercover operations as utilized by law enforcement entities. Students will explore the planning and execution of undercover investigations, selection of officers for undercover assignment, maintaining cover identities, gathering intelligence, managing safety and ethical considerations, and navigating legal and procedural constraints. Risk management, psychological challenges, and the impact of undercover work on both investigators and their communities will also be discussed. The emphasis of applying theory to practice in this course will help students develop both their academic knowledge as well as enhance their future career skills. Real-world case studies, operations planning and simulations will be used to illustrate best practices and challenges, offering students a practical understanding of undercover work.
